DURACRETE Fencing

How it works

At DuraCrete, we take pride in providing a fencing system that is not only strong and durable but also quick and straightforward to install. Our post-and-panel precast concrete fences are designed for efficiency, ensuring a seamless process from start to finish. Each post is securely aligned, levelled, and anchored in a concrete footing, spaced five feet apart for optimal stability. The foundation depth is adjusted based on soil conditions, wind loads, and fence height to guarantee long-term durability.

Once the concrete footing has undergone an initial 24-hour curing period, the fence panels are carefully inserted into the ground. Additional panels are then stacked securely to achieve the desired height, with the entire structure reinforced by the post foundation. To complete the installation, a concrete panel cap is attached, providing a polished and professional finish.

Our fencing solutions can be constructed up to eight feet high and are adaptable to a variety of landscapes. Panels can be cut and modified to suit specific project requirements, making DuraCrete fences a flexible choice for any site. Whether for residential, commercial, or industrial applications, our efficient installation process ensures a secure, long-lasting, and visually appealing result.
